Winrar keygen is used to create serial keys for crack and use on windows operating system. , by the team of AIO.0.Q: Preserving string space when iterating through string list in python I have a list of strings in the following format: 'CATdog' 'DOGcat' 'NEWpig' I want to find the number of letters in each string without counting spaces, tabs or other characters. So, the output for the above list would be 2 for each string, as there are two letters. I tried using the following code: >>>

```
for strng in myList: nl = 0
for i in range(len(strng)):
    if strng[i] == " ": nl = nl + 1
    break;
```

This works well if mylist has no spaces. However, if there are spaces in the list it fails. How can I iterate through a string list and preserve the spaces when there are spaces in the list? A: Substitute your break statement with an if statement: for strng in myList: nl = 0 for i in range(len(strng)): if strng[i] != ' ':
